FLOWERS ARE POPULAR

THEY ARE IMPORTANT
THESE DAYSFlowers are everywhere. Flowers, especially for the evening.At the recent spectacular Galas (and Paris has had many of them just lately) practically every woman has worn flowers in her hair.Chanel's huge lacquered daisies, her ornigons of all types of roses
bunched together with dull green leaves, made the back of many a pretty woman's head as interesting as the front; and her stiff little tiaras of old-fashioned moss
roses are around everywhere, as romantic as they are alluring.Corsages or flowers are equally important.Molyneux uses many, from stiffly lacquered flowers, in brilliant Portuguese peasant colours pinned to the neckline of dresses in cool, white transparent organza, to whole arm-loads of peonies across the front of formal evening gowns
in cloaked crepe.Just because practically all Paris are pinning decorations of feathers and flowers in their hair is no reason why all the interest should centre around the head.One pretty young girl, supper-dancing at the Boeur-sur-le-Tout had on a slim black crepe gown
well up under her chin in front,
and slit to the girdle at the back.
She had emeralds in her ears and on her wrists, while her black crepe evening pumps had tiny green wings fastened to each side.Actually the smartest woman
I've seen for days had on a bright "soldier" red coat, Schiaparelli's shirt tail coat, and a slim black dress of fine crepe.Her hat was of shining hatter's velour, rolled upon one side and down on the other, with a supple black veil flecked with small cherillie dots hanging straight down all around the brim! Her gloves and handbag were in black suede.Black and white printed tunics in Moygashel linen, worn with slender black tailored skirts, are evidently very popular among the smart women of Paris, for I saw the same dress on three women during the last two days.One wore a Kelly green scarf and sash and a huge black cartwheel with a minute white bird perched on the side of the tallish crown; one of the others chose mustard-coloured accessories, and the third had sapphire blue.One of the smartest black evening dresses at the Ritz the other evening was topped by a huge cape made entirely of pink carna-von petals.Knitted afternoon dresses in floral patterns which imitate prints.These are very lovely, and especially practical.

HINTS FOR THE BRIDE

When choosing the model for your wedding gown bear in mind two important points. First, that the dress should be comfortable to wear, and, secondly, that it should lend itself to adaptation for post-wedding functions.The first point is of the greatest importance. During the great day you will have plenty of things to do and to think about; little worries, anxious moments quite apart from the excitement and the emotional strain! Don't add a physical discomfort to an already overcharged day by overtight sleeves or a neckline that slips or shoulders that pull. You will already have plenty of unaccustomed accessories to cope with in your veil
and your bouquet and your train!
Every one of your movements every step you take, is going to be watched and remembered by many interested pairs of eyes. The slightest mistake can quickly degenerate into a comic incident that will spoil the memory of an otherwise perfect day.Now to the second point; how to turn your wedding dress to practical purposes when you get back from the honeymoon. With the modern taste for high-front decollies and low-cut backs, most wedding gowns can easily be adapted to evening wear by the simple process of cutting out the back and removing the sleeves altogether and reducing the train to normal length. If your train is very long this will make you a handsome scarf or a little fur-edged cape.If, on the other hand, the sleeves form part of the structure of the bodice, you can leave them in,
cut the train even with the rest of the skirt, give your dress a note of rich colour at the waist, and you have a charming dinner dress that will defy recognition except by your nearest and dearest! Dye it black or one of the lovely new soft powder blues or pastel pinks and the metamorphosis will be complete. Shortened, dyed, and with a matching waistband, most wedding gowns transform obligingly into useful afternoon or bridge frocks.

SUIT SEASON IS HERE

MANY INTERESTING
VOGUES

New York.

It is a suit season here. For all day-time occasions, from sports to cocktails, and also for informal dining, the jacket and skirt theme is paramount.The "Gibson Girl" silhouette is firmly entrenched. Jacket lapels are high, shoulders built up and out in the traditional manner, and skirts have a pencil slimmness for day-time, but sweep out around the hem in dinner-suits.Light greys with fairly broad chalk stripes, dark plain greys, and a new green-grey are the three leading shades. Shirt waist blouses with masculine collars in transparent wools or silk shirtings invariably complete the ensemble.Removable white pique coat linings are smart for formal day-time occasions. They are shown with black, brown and navy suits.Eton jacket suits are worn with starched linen blouses, with stiffened Eton collars. Apple green, rose pink, turquoise blue and banana yellow are among the colours used against dark suit shades and those in grey and oatmeal tones.Chinese influence is shown in suits with loose jackets and bell-shaped sleeves.Here braid is used for trimming the collarless neck-lines and the wide sleeves. Often the braid is brought right around the neck and in a triple row down the front to the hem.Loose blouses, with high collar-bands, and in brilliant contrasting colours keep in character with the scheme.There is a hat for every type of suit. These Chinese suits are worn with small stiff-brimmed hats with peaked crowns. The brims turn down all the way round, coolie fashion."Nubbed" or roughened, straws are also in the foreground for perky little hats, with very flat crowns and rather wide brims taking a decided dip back and front.
Onion skin, a fine glaze synthetic fabric, is one of the latest arrivals in the millinery field. It reproduces exactly the clear, neutral transparency of natural onion skin,
and makes a most effective contrast to brown.

PRE-VIEW*WHAT SMART
WOMEN ARE WEARING*THE STYLES IN PARIS

Paris.

Smart Englishwomen who pay flying visits to Paris all ask one question. They want to know what smart Parisiennes are wearing. That is just what I have news of now.

What seems to be a high spot at the collections "or at Long-champ, and what is worn by the chic Parisienne is very often quite a different proposition. Sensational models which cause much talk and argument, do not always "catch on."

At the moment, everyone seems to be wearing a printed, tailored jacket with a plain skirt.

Jackets are in linen, taffeta, silk or cotton, printed usually with flower design, either large or small. If they are strictly tailored, the lapels match the skirt—for instance, a white jacket printed with gay sprigs of flowers has a black skirt and black lapels.

The blouse, if not of the same material as the jacket, is of mousseline, with an important jabot. Jabots, by the way, are one of the big features of the season.

Plain white pique jackets are also seen with dark skirts and dark blouses. White, in fact, is very significant, and the redingote of white pique, nipped-in at the waist, flaring at the skirt, is an interesting arrival. It has been worn by some very elegant women at recent race meetings and gave quite a new note.

Formal afternoon frocks have a neatly tailored look, and the exaggerated sleeve has almost disappeared. Necklines are high and unsophisticated and the all-lace or all-ruffle suit, tailored like silk or wool, has been noticed these recent few hot days in Paris.

Printed frocks with loose or belted jackets are much in evidence. Unbelted jackets, short in front and dipping at the back, are sometimes lined with a dark material.

BELTS ARE NEWS

Belts are news. At Chantilly I saw a simple black frock, relieved by a black belt covered in front with little white daisies. White gloves and a large white hat, trimmed with white daisies, completed the ensemble.

Evening frocks are much belted. A black tulle dress had a broad garland of gold leather ivy leaves encircling the waist. Another lace frock had a wide belt of plaited velvet in three vivid and contrasting colours. The extravaganza jewelled belts of last year have quite vanished.

The popular evening frock is slim, with fullness starting from the knees. There is much lace, satin, and taffeta about. Some women wear paillette-embroidered jackets and swagger coats of an evening. Others like small oval-shaped fur capes in sable, fox, or ermine.

Latest novelty is the short tulle cape, in three or as many as five different and contrasting colours. Hat shapes are varied. Crowns are either pointed, or very shallow, or rather high. High crowns are sometimes crushed down like an opera-hat.

The rage just now is the straw hat shaped like a man's Homburg and dented in the middle; this is worn both in the morning and the afternoon. The afternoon model generally softened by a veil, and is usually in white.

FLOWERS AND HATS

London.

In London women are wearing flower garden fashions. Hats are massed with lilies of the valley or ox-eyed daisies, and neck yokes are blossom encircled.

Dresses are flower printed, so are square "boxy" taffetas coats. Little oval dipping coats of white pique, crepon fabrics, or linen have flowers as link "buttons" to fasten them at the throat.

Flowers are massed under shallow straw hats, as well as set around their crowns, or in front of brimless caps.

Another fancy which women are showing is to have, not only big stiff "organdie" collars on their frocks or as sleeveless fronts for tailored suits, but to have "pie" frills and Elizabethan ruffles trimming their hats as an alternative to flowers, and surprisingly charming these are.

Long, plain navy taffetas, full "box" coats are worn over dot, spot or flower-printed dresses.

Coloured gloves are favoured, especially in dark violet, prune or brown. I saw a woman very recently once wearing pale pink stitched gauntlets to match her small pink toque.

Light grey flannel suits, perfectly tailored, are much in evidence among smart women. Bowler hats are worn with them in white felt or straw, or in matching colours.

A shiny straw tambourine handbag, and a long silver hat brooch from which dangle coloured enamel and silver lucky charms are race-going conceits sponsored by English women.

White and shiny coloured handbags, shoes picked out with light colours, dark frocks with patch pockets, decorated with gay little multi-coloured felt flowers are other ideas I've seen around and about town, whilst for evening the tailored suits of lace, taffetas, satin, and pique materials holds its own.

MORE FEMININE TREND

Shorts, bloomer and pyjama suits are on the way for summer holidays and have charm which makes this type of beach wear look more feminine. Whether in plain or spotted linen, shantung or tussore, designers give many of these garments overall frocks, coats tailored to semi-fitted redingote shape and capes. There is a knee length skirt joined up to a chemise blouse as cover to rompers and brassieres. There is another skirted version, but shorter and more like a kilt in tartan checked linen set beneath a backless waistcoat of white pique and white pique "smoking" jacket.

Original, too, is a Helmi jacket tailored from white, scarlet and rust light-weight flannel for wear with black pebbly linen skirts and bloomers. This looks very smart and could be worn for week-ends and country sports with shorts in the coming for beach wear.

Black linen jackets make attractive outlines with little frocks of light colour, such as oatmeal beige self-toned checked linen. An all-white linen tailored suit looks impeccable with a Norfolk pleat at the back of the jacket and sleeves fitted out to hunch up at shoulders.

King-cup yellow linen is another interesting note for a summer overcoat dress style. With the exception of shorts and bloomers, all these styles will do double duty for town and holiday wear.

Fresh ideas bring a change to "pareos" and "diaphans," the combination of long outer garment and sun-bask-mallot which has apparently become a classic in special beach-wear styles. Scarlet and white spotted oiled silk with matching "pareo" is one new example, and ruby red shirred velvet another. The latter is for wear beneath a big floral patterned white and black opaque linen over-cloak. The "mariflore" is out, but more variations are on the way. It is the new version of beach-wear gown in exclusive printed cottons and linens as well as white pique to cover sun-basking maillots for informal restaurant dining. The models that have appeared up to date are smartly tailored with full ground length necks and jackets.

WAR IS NOT
INEVITABLEA Strong Navy Is Essential
SIR SAMUEL HOARE
ON COLLECTIVE SECURITY

At a meeting of the Central Council of National Union of Conservative Associations, a resolution proposed by Sir Henry Page Croft was carried without dissent calling upon the Government to resist any proposals which might tend to weaken the integrity of Empire. Another resolution demands that none of the mandated territories under British control be surrendered to the League of Nations or to the sovereignty of any foreign power was also carried.
Speaking tonight at a dinner of the Royal Empire Society, Sir Samuel Hoare said it was criminal foolly to assume that war was inevitable. There was however no such inflammable material in Europe that although no country desired war a spark might start the conflagration unless the great powers like Britain were strong enough to make their influence felt in the cause of peace. That was why they were doing their utmost still further to accelerate the naval programme. If the British Army, Navy and Air Force were adequately strengthened in time, there was going to be no world war.

FOOLISH TO SAY

Discussing the question whether a well balanced fleet capable of defeating an enemy and keeping the seas open, equipped to go anywhere and concentrated upon its three essential duties of cover, cruising and convoy could be built in face of the changes created by the air power, Sir Samuel Hoare said neither the naval staff nor he would ever be so foolish as to say that the defence had caught up with the attack. But if asked whether the advent of air power had changed the functions of the navy and had made it impossible to build a fleet that could carry out its traditional duties, his answer was "No." In building such a fleet his advisers were determined to make the fullest use of air power, and to make the new fleet predominant and the most mobile force of peace in the world.

TWO LESSONS

There were two lessons that emerged from experience of the last six months. The first was that collective security in actual practice meant the British fleet in Mediterranean. It was the embodiment of collective security.
Deprived of the advantages of incubation and of the carefully laid preparations, faced with disturbing anxieties, international uncertainties and long protracted crisis, the fleet in the Mediterranean and the Red Sea had performed with constancy and efficiency the duty that was imposed upon it. It had completely fulfilled its duty of preventing the extension of conflict.

The second lesson was that although in theory the combined strength of fifty nations might mean a formidable military force, in practice, the value of force dependent entirely upon the willingness of the various countries not only to go to war with the aggressor, but to be prepared for war,
if, and when the aggressor made his attack. The only member state of the League that was prepared ever to make the effective preparations was Great Britain. The hope then in present state of world opinion would be justified in assuming that we could depend upon collective help in the distant regions of world where the leading powers were not members of the League.

STRONG NAVY ESSENTIAL

These lessons showed that the League, no less than the world of 19th century depended upon a strong British Navy as one of great factors of peace. Secondly the absence of collective military action in the autumn showed that the British Empire, whilst it would do its utmost to achieve the ideal of collective security must still depend upon its imperial defences, and particularly upon the strong British Navy. These lessons deserved to be pondered calmly and dispassionately at home and by the Dominions. In spite of the changes, the fundamental fact remained that the Empire depends for its life on its sea communications. Let us then learn wisdom from the experience of the last six months. We are determined to stop, and drift to war. Stronger in the future than we have been in recent years, our influence in the cause of peace will be greater and not less.—British Wireless.

A DEATH AND A WILL

London, June 9.
Two links with Cecil Rhodes

John Hays Hammond, the American multi-millionaire, who was associated with Rhodes in South Africa.

ague Rhodes, last surviving brother of Cecil Rhodes. He died last January, aged 76, after farming in South Africa and Rhodesia, and left £113,000.
As a mining engineer Mr. Hammond became associated with Cecil Rhodes and the Barnato brothers, and played a prominent part in the development of the Rand goldfields.

As one of the leaders of the Rand faction, was arrested after the Jameson raid and condemned to death. The sentence, however was commuted, and he was later released on payment of a fine of £25,000.

He was the Special Ambassador of the United States Government at the coronation of King George V.

He is the father of John Hays Hammond, the inventor of various projectile and electrical devices.

"THE STORY OF LOUIS PASTEUR."

"It is distinguished and gripping drama that blazes a new trail in pictures. Warner Bros. have fashioned a story that grips from the start. Muni's performance is something to cheer about. William Dieterle's direction deserves lavish praise."

AT THE KING'S

"BROWN ON RESOLUTION"

"Brown on Resolution" showing to-day at the King's Theatre tells with dramatic intensity the story of a young Able-Seaman, the child of a naval officer who has left for a China station ignorant of the fact that he is to have a son.

With traditional pride in her sweetheart's calling, his mother sends him to a Naval Training Establishment and he subsequently becomes an Able-Seaman.

When war breaks out "Rutland," the ship in which Albert Brown is stationed, is caught at a disadvantage by the enemy and the lad finds himself in the sick bay of the "Zeithen."

Sheltering off the rocky coast of Resolution Island whilst undergoing repairs, the German cruiser is delayed by the fact that Brown has escaped and is busily engaged in sniping at the German sailors whilst they are effecting repairs, with the result that the British ship "Leopard," with Brown's own father in command, arrives in time to put paid to the Zeithen's account.

THE PLAY'S THE THING

COMMUNITY DRAMA

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 15.

The play, that is to say, and not the prize. This seems to be the general "moral" of the discussions and decisions at Saturday's meeting of West of Scotland Community Drama organisations. And a good thing too, as one can't help thinking.

There can be no doubt that "community drama" and its system of festivals are doing a lot to make life intelligently interesting for a great many Scots people nowadays. And the festivals themselves have an essential part in this good work. Without them, it seems certain, we should never have got far from the old tradition of "amateur theatricals"—a pleasant, easy-going tradition in its way, but not one that could ever have kept a movement going throughout the entire country or could have properly supplied that knowledge and appreciation of the drama the lack of which made, for centuries, a big gap in Scotland's national culture.

A DANGER

But for all that, there is, pretty obviously, a danger in this festival business. The drama, after all, is not quite the same sort of thing as a sport like football or cricket. Try, a team may play one of these games finely and with style, yet not win every match. But match winning, the scoring of points, is part of the essence of the games. When competitions between drama clubs become almost as highly organised as Cup-ties or League championships it becomes possible for companies of players to forget that the main object of their art is not the scoring of marks in an adjudicator's notebook.

One may see a tendency of this sort in Saturday's proposals that clubs should be advised about the mark-scoring possibilities of plays before they began to rehearse them, and that no team should be allowed to engage a professional producer. The main idea in both cases is obviously to give a fair field and no favour in the festival competitions themselves. It is quite a reasonable idea in its way, but it does seem to set the business of competing above interest in the drama itself or in the actual quality of acting. The meeting in Glasgow seems to have reacted vigorously against it for that very reason—which suggests that community drama will not, for the present, be allowed to fall to the level of an "organised game."

DAVID COPPERFIELD

A conservative estimate of the sales of Charles Dickens' novels places the total at well over half a billion copies. The greatest and most widely read of them all is "David Copperfield," made into a motion picture by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, and screening at the Star Theatre to-day, for one day only with an unprecedented cast of sixty-five stars and featured players.

The three most widely read of Dickens' novels are "David Copperfield," "Pickwick Papers" and "A Christmas Carol."

The consensus of opinion is that "David Copperfield" is the greatest novel in the English language. It is used in all universities in any course based on the study of the

"The cocoon has burgeoned out into a butterfly, and Rochelle Hudson at last realizes her ambition to wear a procession of beautiful film frocks with her appearance in "Everybody's Old Man," which is showing to-day at the Alhambra Theatre.

Recent experience has led Miss Hudson to wonder if all the talk about exquisite gowns in motion pictures was just a myth. For too long she was forced to don the uniform of an orphanage, the simple frocks of a school teacher, or costumes of the 1880 period.

Then along comes "Everybody's Old Man," which stars Irvin S. Cobb in his first leading role, and Miss Hudson finds herself cast as an intriguing young heiress, and her film wardrobe crammed with lovely, lacy, shimmering things; afternoon frocks and sports outfits, all designed by Gwen Wakeling, 20th Century-Fox stylist.

"I was beginning to think I was doomed to dowdy dresses for the rest of my days," says Miss Hudson. "A girl likes beautiful clothes, and it goes against the grain to wear nothing but sackcloth and the ugly costumes of the last century."

"You can't imagine the thrill it gives me to be literally swimming in Paris creations."

Teamed with Johnny Downs and Norman Foster in "Everybody's Old Man," Miss Hudson is one of the trio of youngsters who give Irvin Cobb headaches and a hilarious goods time. He plays the role of a retired industrialist who tries his hand at reforming wild youngsters in this delightful romantic comedy. James Flood directed the picture, on which Bogart Rogers acted as associate producer.

Two impressions was found. Ten minutes after being brought to Scotland Yard it was identified and the criminal known.

This is largely the work of Mr. Battley and his assistants, including Inspector Cherrill.

DETECTION BY SINGLE FINGER MARKS

System Of 16,777,216 Groups

30 YEARS' WORK AT SCOTLAND YARD

London, June 10.

Behind the statement in "The Daily Telegraph" yesterday that the United States police are so impressed with Scotland Yard's single finger-print system that they are adopting it themselves, lies a romantic story of crime detection and patient organisation.

The system was devised by Supt. H. Battley, head of the finger-print department at Scotland Yard. He accompanied Lt.-Col. Brock, his Majesty's Inspector of Constabulary, and Assistant Commissioner Howe on the mission to the United States, and gave police there much information on his latest improvements.

The original finger-print system of Sir Edward Henry has undergone remarkable developments through the discoveries of Supt. Battley. He has spent nearly 30 years in the finger-print department, and has recently done much to perfect his system.

CLASSIFICATION METHODS

The method of classification is based on such points as plain arches, in which the ridges have an uninterrupted flow from side to side, radial loops in order of ridge counts, and according to formation of core and whorls, which are sub-divided into six methods of reading.

Under the Henry system, which is used for the main collection, there are 81 sub-groups, to any one of which a set of finger-prints with the whorl pattern on four of the fingers may belong. In the Battley system there are 16,777,216 such groups.

Here is an example of the results obtained. A piece of glass with

KOWLOON MAN VICTIMISED

Premises Broken Into
And Jewellery Stolen

$140 LOSS

Thefts of jewellery, wrist watches, and a Kodak Eastman camera from No. 14 Peking Road, valued at $140.50 were mentioned at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday when Chan Sun, 34, Lai Tai, 30, and Chan Wing, 29, all unemployed, were charged, in connection with the robbery alleged to have taken place on the night of June 2.

Wing pleaded "not guilty." Det. Sgt. Haynes of the Water Police, who prosecuted said that the police were prepared to accept his plea. He had given valuable information to the Police. Accused was discharged.

Of the jewellery and other articles stolen, only $40.50 had been recovered, said the prosecuting officer.

Chan Sun and Lai were arrested in Hung Hom. Chan admitted complicity but Lai strenuously denied the allegations. Later however, in a statement to the police he said "I did steal it." He told the police that Chan actually forced his way into the premises and handed the jewellery and camera to him. The jewellery were sold to a man in Kowloon City for eighty cents, while a wrist watch was pawned for $2.50. Chan admitted selling the camera in Canton for $12.

First accused who had a previous conviction in 1929 for a breach of the deportation order besides numerous other offences, was sentenced to four months. Lai was sentenced to two months.

The recovered jewellery were ordered to be returned to Mr. Bogdatsky, shopkeeper, of Peking Road.

On Wednesday, Mr. Kawazoe decided to investigate the matter and waited in Queen's Road Central near the Naval Dockyard for some of his pupils. He saw the four complainants coming along and when they were near the Naval Dockyard they were attacked by the defendant and two other men who managed to escape. The defendant was arrested. The time was about 8 a.m.

NEW FINGER-PRINT METHODS

TRACING OF GLOVED
HANDS

London, June 10.

New methods of developing latent finger prints are resulting in a steady increase in the number of finger prints found at the scenes of crimes.

The value of the single finger-print system devised by Superintendent Bartley, head of the finger-print department at Scotland Yard, has been described in "The Daily Telegraph." Just as important are new methods, gradually being adopted, of taking prints from materials which formerly did not respond to treatment.

Prints, which otherwise would not have been discovered, are now brought to light by secret processes. Some of these are still in the experimental stage.

There have been several recorded cases in this country and abroad in which finger prints have been traced from a hand which was wearing a glove, and it is believed that this method may develop to an extent far beyond what has already been achieved. At present much depends on the type of glove used and the surface on which the imprint is made.

The finger-print department is becoming one of the most important at Scotland Yard. Last year 21,767 identifications were effected from 55,399 sets of finger prints sent for search.

permission to smoke heroin. This request was granted and immediately two other men, unknown to the defendant walked in also and started smoking. Within a few seconds the Revenue officers came and the defendant was arrested.

DANGEROUS TO PASS CAR ON BEND

Magistrate's Comment In Traffic Offence

HOTEL MANAGER FINED

Police were opposed to excessive speed round curves and regarded 25 miles an hour as fast enough on the Repulse Bay Road, declared Traffic Inspector S. C. Saunders at the Central Magistracy yesterday.

Inspector Saunders appeared for the police in a summons against Mr. Alphonse George Piovaneli, manager of the Hong Kong Hotel, for having failed to drive with due care and caution on the Repulse Bay Road on May 31.

Mr. W. A. Mackinlay appeared for Mr. Piovaneli.

Allegations that Mr. Piovaneli had passed him at a fast speed round a curve were made by Commander G. F. Hole, Harbour Master, who said that at 6.45 p.m. he was driving in the direction of the city.

"Just after passing the house called 'La Hacienda' I heard the hoot of a motor horn behind me," said Commander Hole. "I rounded a corner into a stretch of straight road and the car hooted again. My wife, who was sitting beside me remarked 'There is somebody behind us in no end of a hurry. You must let them pass but you can't do it yet.' I replied 'No, we can't let them pass now as we are just going to a corner.'"

Commander Hole continued that just as he was about to take the curve he heard another hoot from the car and out of the corner of his eye he saw a car drawing up abreast of him. He exclaimed "My God! He is going to pass me on the corner!"

COLLISION IMMINENT

"I then saw a big red bus coming in the opposite direction," said Commander Hole. "By this time the overtaking car was abreast of me and I had already started to take the curve. I saw at once that unless something was done, and done at once, one of two things would happen: either that the overtaking car would crash head-on into the motor bus or else he would swerve to the left and probably hit my bonnet with the back of his car, thus forcing me into the ditch and possibly over the bank."

Commander Hole said he therefore jammed on his brakes as hard as he could and the overtaking car came into the left clear of the oncoming bus and went on. After taking the corner and going on into the next straight stretch, he took the number of the overtaking car.

On Tuesday, June 2, Commander Hole continued, he reported the matter to the police about 3.30 p.m.

WENT TOO FAST

Asked by Mr. Schofield, the Magistrate, whether he had taken the number of the bus Commander Hole replied that he was too concerned about getting clear of the other car to notice the bus's number.

When asked by Mr. Mackinlay whether "Mr. Piovaneli's car remained abreast of his for any appreciable length of time Commander Hole said "No, it was going too fast. It shot past me, going at least 35 to 40 miles an hour." He went on to say that he did not actually stop his car but dropped down to about seven miles an hour, and had to change gear.

Commander Hole went on to say that on the morning of June 2 he rang the police to discover the owner of the car. About 1.30 he went to the Hong Kong Hotel to see Mr. Piovaneli about the matter, and to verify his facts before taking further action.

"I also had in the back of my mind," he continued, "the possibility of closing the matter if a suitable apology were forthcoming. Mr. Piovaneli was unable to see me however as he was busy."

CLUB TIPPIN

"I then went to the Hong Kong Club for tiffin and had a conversation with one or two members about the matter. This led me to change my mind about the possibility of an apology being sufficiently adequate on this occasion. I then reported the matter to the police."

To Mr. Mackinlay, Commander Hole said, that although it was difficult to estimate the distance between the bus and Mr. Piovaneli's car when it passed his was about 40 or 50 yards.

Mrs. Hole said she was the only passenger in the car. The day was fine and the road dry. Shortly after passing the Spanish house she heard a hoot behind and said "Better let them pass."

"The next thing we knew," she said, "was that a car shot past and as we were turning the car passed us. I saw a bus coming towards us and it looked as if the bus and the other car would collide. We put on our brakes, the bus apparently did the same and there was no collision." It was one of the most narrow escapes I have ever seen."

LETTER OF APOLOGY

Her husband did not put out his hand to beckon the other car on, she said. She did not see who was driving the other car but noticed a woman sitting next to the driver.

To Mr. Mackinlay, Mrs. Hole said the bus was about two car lengths from her when she saw it. Mr. Piovaneli wrote her a letter later expressing regret at having upset her, she stated.

Man Chiu, driver of the bus, said the cars were about 15 yards from him when they passed. He was travelling about 12 to 13 miles an hour and stopped the bus because he considered it dangerous to pass another car on a curve.

Mr. Piovaneli stated in evidence that he saw Commander Hole's car while travelling along a straight stretch of road, hooted twice and began to overtake it on a straight stretch but as soon as he drew level with the other car, he began to accelerate and kept level with him for at least 30 yards.

"We were then approaching the bend," he said. "I could see a long way round the bend and noticed the bus approaching. I accelerated to about 40 miles an hour, overtook the other car and passed between it and the bus with the greatest of ease as far as I could see. The distance between us and the bus was about 15 or 20 yards."

ERROR OF JUDGMENT

In asking that the case be dismissed Mr. Mackinlay admitted having passed Commander Hole's car on the curve but submitted that the case was pre-eminently one of judgment and that at the very highest only an error of judgment had been committed.

Mr. Schofield remarked that it was clear from Mr. Piovaneli's evidence that he had taken a risk. He admitted having passed another car rounding a curve and anyone who did that was taking an undue risk.

Inspector Saunders declared that the police did not like excessive speed around bends and considered 25 miles an hour fast enough for the Repulse Bay Road. Anything above that was decidedly dangerous for in addition to the danger of oncoming traffic there were pedestrians to be considered.

Mr. Schofield then adjourned the court to view the scene and on his return imposed a fine of $30. He warned Mr. Piovaneli that as he had a previous conviction for a similar offence, he would have to bring the matter to the notice of the Inspector General of Police if there were a repetition.

Commander Hole declared that after the summons had been taken out Mr. Piovaneli had written a letter of apology to Mrs. Hole.

WEDDING AT THE CATHEDRAL

Miss Ethel Hatch Is Married

TO MR. R. L. WYLLIE

Two well-known Hong Kong residents were married at St. John's Cathedral yesterday when the wedding took place of Mr. Roy Leslie Wyllie and Miss Ethel Hatch.

Mr. Wyllie is Hong Kong representative for London paper merchants and Miss Hatch is the daughter of Mr. H. Hatch of the Hong Kong Electric Company. Rev. H. W. Baines performed the ceremony.

An ivory Chantilly lace in rose design fashioned the "Bianche" gown worn by the bride. Made on Grecian lines, with a slightly draped neck, line and caplets of orange blossom on each shoulder. It had long full sleeves tightened at the wrist with rings of orange blossom. The skirt fell in soft folds forming a graceful train.

The embroidered Brussels net veil was held in place by a halo of orange blossom set far back on the hair and a bouquet of Jasmin and gardenias completed the ensemble.

Attending the bride were Misses Irene Deacon and Nancy Duckworth who were gowned in lilac and water lily organdie with very full sleeves and skirts trimmed with horseshoes of pastel shaded parma violets.

LONG SASHES

Unusual style notes were long sashes of moiré, Watteauhaas and heart shaped vanity bags of flowers and ferns.

Mrs. Deacon, matron of honour, was in blue and white floral chiffon over shell pink with a long sash in toning shades and a picture hat. Her flowers were pink shaded gladioli.

Mr. A. P. Downey was best man. After the ceremony a reception was held at the Gloucester Hotel. The couple then left for the honeymoon, the bride's travelling dress being a smart delphinium blue albene ensemble with hat, shoes and bag to tone.

WILLIAM POWELL HAS A BAD YEAR

Depression's Effect On Trading

FUTURE BRIGHTER

Effects of the depression were mentioned by Mr. E. M. Raymond when he presided at the annual meeting of shareholders of William Powell Ltd. yesterday.

In moving the adoption of the report and statement of accounts, Mr. Raymond said:—

The directors regret having to present accounts showing a loss of $8,728.14.

At almost all recent shareholders meetings of public companies the chairman have referred to the effects of the general depression on trading during the past year. I know you are all too painfully aware of this, and I do not propose to make any remarks other than that your company has been no exception to the general rule and has also suffered.

Your directors have had constantly before them throughout the year the necessity for economy.

Overhead and other expenses have been reduced to a point where in the opinion of your directors, further reductions are well nigh impossible without seriously affecting the efficiency and inevitably the turnover of your Company.

THINGS PICK UP

I am pleased to report that business generally improved towards the close of the financial year and this was reflected in the turnover during the last two months.

This improvement has been kept up and without appearing unduly optimistic, indications are that such improvement has come to stay.

I can only hope that such is the case and that with the savings in expenses the directors will come before you with a much better report next year.

Referring to the profit and loss account, you will note that the amount written off as bad debts, though still high, shows a considerable reduction on that of the previous two years.

OVERDRAFT DOWN

Interest charge has also been reduced considerably and is the direct result of careful financing. It is anticipated that this charge will be still further reduced during the current year.

The Directors have again voluntarily waived 50 per cent. of their fees for the year.

Turning to the balance sheet you will note that our liability to the bank has been greatly reduced. This figure stood at approximately $16,000 last year and approximately $35,000 at February, 1934.

A cautious policy has again been adopted in the purchase of stock and it will be noted that the value of stocks on hand as shown in the balance sheet is down considerably on the amount shown last year.

The directors feel that this policy has been justified under existing conditions. Such stocks are now valued at or below replacement cost and very little old stock is now being carried.

REPORT ADOPTED

Mr. Ross seconded and the proposal was agreed to unanimously.

The confirmation of the appointment of Mr. S. H. Ross as director, in the temporary absence of Mr. J. H. Seth, was moved by Mr. H. Overy, seconded by Mr. H. Seth and agreed to unanimously.

Mr. Ross moved and Mr. Overy seconded the reappointment of Mr. Raymond as director. This was agreed to.

On the motion of Mr. D. Black, seconded by Mr. Wong Ping-fan, Linstead and Davis were reappointed auditors at a salary of $325.

Those present were Messrs. E. M. Raymond (chairman), S. H. Ross (director), H. Overy (managing director), W. L. Alexander (secretary) and A. Nissim, D. Black, H. Seth, and Wong Ping-fan (shareholders).

THE BRITISH WORLD

Sir Samuel Hoare has made his first public speech since returning to the Cabinet.

It was a fine speech, a splendid inspiration. Sir Samuel praised our Empire as a power for peace. He spoke of the League of Nations in terms which show that he stands firm in the convictions he declared in his resignation speech last December. He said that the member States had gone to Geneva without the united principles and common loyalties that bound together Great Britain and the Dominions; that in course of time such a loyalty would perhaps unite the world; but the time had not come yet and it was a mistake to base a theoretical policy on that assumption.

Meanwhile, the world may learn much from "the tradition, the experience, and the spirit of the British Commonwealth." Here is a community of 500,000,000 people inhabiting 14,000,000 square miles of the earth's surface; a community at peace within itself and peaceful in its contact with other nations. It is impossible to overestimate the force of such an example, the influence of such a policy.

The stronger and more prosperous our Empire becomes, says Sir Samuel Hoare, the greater grows its influence for peace.

At this moment we are at the threshold of far-reaching developments in the maintenance of Empire security and the cultivation of Empire trade. Representatives of the Dominions have gone to London to discuss these needs.

Mr. Pirow, South Africa's Defence Minister, is conferring with members of the British Cabinet. Dr. Earle Page, from Australia, is investigating the prospects of his country's future trade with us. Australia's attitude was defined in a recent speech in London by Mr. Menzies, the Australian Attorney-General. She is determined to cultivate her present excellent relations with other Pacific countries, but she regards her relations with the rest of "the British world" as much more important. Therefore she intends to make her tariff preferences to London a reality, and not a matter of bargaining.

Close upon the representatives of Australia and South Africa will come the representatives of Canada. A delegation of the Canadian Cabinet, it was announced recently, is leaving soon for London to discuss methods of improving Anglo-Canadian trade.

The perfection of the Empire's defences to ensure that we shall live at peace, the adoption of new measures of trade to increase the Empire's prosperity, are tasks for men of vision who are also realists.

The return of Sir Samuel Hoare to the Cabinet at this hour is a piece of good fortune for the nation. He has vision, and the realism of his policy is clearly shown in his reminder that "we can best help the cause of peace by undertaking nothing that we cannot fulfil," and that while our influence will always be on the side of European peace, "we are an Imperial and oceanic rather than a Continental Power."

If Sir Samuel Hoare will steadily pursue this policy he will win an immense following in the country. It is a mantle which he can wear with great dignity. Let him but persevere, and he will prevail.

DAIL DECISION

Dublin, June 24.
Mr. Eamon de Valera, the Free State chief executive, when moving the estimates for the Government's establishments today, announced that the Dail in view of its new constitution would abolish the office of Governor-General.

The elected representative would be the ceremonial head of the state, he said.

Itoh Eliminated By Quist

London, June 25.
In the third round of the Men's Singles at the Wimbledon Tennis championships, Adrian Quist (Australia) beat E. Itoh (Japan) 6-0, 6-0, 6-3.

Itoh was unable to counter Quist's pace and over-drove and netted frequently. The Japanese played a baseline game and exposed the forecourt to the Australian's brilliant volleys. Itoh was effective on the forehand and backhand slicing, but he missed many opportunities at volleying.

PERRY BRILLIANT

The most attractive programme was the one in which the men's competition boiled down to the last sixteen third-rounders.

Perry was most brilliant and overwhelmed the American Davis Cup player, Van Ryn in forty five minutes, winning 6-2, 6-3, 6-0.

Wilmur Allison, American Davis Cup player, beat Vanden Eynde (Belgium) 8-6, 7-5, 7-5.

NO JAPANESE WITNESSES

British Court Held Up In Peiping

Peiping, June 25.
A boycott of the British Consular Court has apparently been declared by the Japanese authorities who failed to produce any witnesses this morning at the hearing of the charge of manslaughter against two privates of the British Embassy guard, H. Hunt and D. Cook, in connection with the death of Kikaku Sasaki, a Japanese officer attached to the Manchukuo Ministry of war.

In consequence of the absence of witnesses, the prosecutor announced that he was unable to continue the proceedings and asked to be granted an adjournment until the afternoon.

In addition to witnesses, Japanese officials and pressmen were also conspicuously absent.

BARMAID'S STORY

Peiping, June 25.
Japanese officials and witnesses attended court in the afternoon without offering an explanation for their absence in the morning.

A Korean barmaid identified Cook who was accompanied by Hunt as having struck a Japanese customer, Onishi, on the forehead. Witness and the victim ran out of the bar, and later returned when she had bandaged her wound.

Onishi, who appeared in Court, disavowed a scar an inch long over the eye.

PLAN TO SAVE CHINA

Southwest Proposals To Nanking

Canton, June 25.
The South-west authorities have submitted to Nanking five important proposals:

Firstly, immediate severance of relations with Japan;

Secondly, abrogation of all humiliating Sino-Japanese agreements;

Thirdly, use of armed forces to prevent increase of Japanese troops in North China;

Fourthly, restoration of freedom of speech and mass movements;

Fifthly, that the Central Government take the initiative to lead the country in a war with Japan.

Reuter.

FURTHER DETAILS

Canton, June 25.
The South-west authorities telegraphed the Nanking Central Executive and Supervisory Committee demanding the five proposals be included on the agenda of the forthcoming second plenary session.

The message declares that the session would be meaningless unless it would discuss concrete measures for national salvation.

The message lengthily explains the reason why the five proposals as cable should be carried out, emphasising severance of relations with Japan would put a halt to Japan's insatiable appetite for aggressions in China and also would increase the foreign powers' sympathy towards China.

In reference to the increase of Japanese troops in North China, the South-west authorities insist on use of armed force to deal with the situation, declaring that the increase of Japanese troops is entirely a violation of the 1901 treaty and expressing the fear that if this is tolerated the Japanese will surely take North China and eventually the Yangtze valley and then South China.

Finally the telegram urges the Central Government to order a general mobilisation to resist the invaders.

The South-west cable appeals to the C.E.C. members throughout the country to put their signatures down to support the South-west proposals.

CHIANG'S STATEMENT

Shanghai, June 25.
General Chiang Kai-shek in a statement on the South-west situation said he would not permit troops from other provinces to invade Kwangsi and Kwangtung. He declared China's welfare did not entirely depend on the international situation. China itself must be responsible for peace and order at home.

He added that the Central Government would carry out to the end its policy of peaceful unification and reiterated he had no personal ambitions and hoped for the public to trust that he will do everything for the interest of the country and not for personal gain.

HANKOW REPORT

Shanghai, June 25.
A reliable report from Hankow states the vanguard of the Kwangsi forces has reached Hanchow and has fired on the Government troops stationed at the city gates, inflicting minor casualties.

Later the Kwangsi troops withdrew, but the situation is very tense.

Reuter.

NANKING ADVANCE

Canton, June 25.
A reliable message from Changsha, Hunan, discloses that, in spite of the complete withdrawal of the troops of Kwangtung and Kwangsi from Hunan, Chiang Kai-shek keeps on pouring his soldiers into said province. At the same time, the Hunanese troops are now ordered to move to Hupai to partake in the bandit suppression campaign. The people and the military leaders of Hunan at present harbour a strong grudge against the dictator in Nanking.

Another information divulges that one Nanking division, which was recently dispatched into Hunan, now rises in rebellion. The troops of that division declare that they would refrain from partaking in the furtherance of any civil war scheme.

JOINT TELEGRAM

Canton, June 25.

FORTY-HOUR WEEK

Arguments At Geneva
BRITISH GOVERNMENT'S VIEW

(Special Air Mail Service)

Geneva, June 9.

The general discussion on the question of a convention for a 40-hour week in the textile industry which is being considered by the International Labour Conference was enlightened to-day by a statement of policy on behalf of the French and British Governments.

The former was made by M. Justin Godart, who declared that the delegation would vote for taking a final decision during the session to adopt such a convention.

Mr. Ernest Brown, the Minister of Labour, stated the policy of the British Government.

Mr. Brown said that the Organization had reached a point at which it found itself face to face with the fundamental question of wages and hours of work.

The proposal for a draft convention to limit hours of work to 40 a week was put on the agenda of the Conference in the first place as a measure for reducing unemployment.

It was, however, inevitable—especially in countries in which workpeople were highly organized and in which there were schemes of unemployment insurance and other provisions for giving assistance to the unemployed—that the question must be considered also from the point of view of those in work, who naturally saw in the proposal a menace to their own earnings.

Mr. Brown described how, by collective agreements, effectively operated, the iron and steel industry in Great Britain had made adjustments to changed conditions. For a large number of the workpeople the hours of work were not more than 41 or 42 a week on the average. Changes in hours and wages had been made simultaneously and, although there had been a reduction of workpeople in proportion to production, the condition of the workpeople had not been worsened by the reduction of hours of work.

INDIVIDUAL FREEDOM

It might be said that the changes ought to have been made by the plain sharing of work and wages so that the number of workpeople was no less. The British Government preferred to leave that decision to the wisdom of the employers' and workpeople's representatives, and to confine their own action to the provision of schemes of unemployment insurance and other measures. To the maintenance of this voluntary system the British Government attached considerable importance.

It was in these circumstances that the British Government were asked to undertake to make compulsory provision for the reduction of hours of work.

The Government would wish to be satisfied (Mr. Brown continued) that the obligation undertaken by Great Britain would be similar to that undertaken by other countries, and that the effects would be similar. We should wish to be satisfied also that the effect would not be to cause unemployment by creating a wider margin between the conditions of British workers and those in other countries, and, further, we should desire to be satisfied that the form of compulsion would be such as the workpeople can accept and the employers can operate.

As we understand the meaning of the draft Convention adopted last year, it gives sanction to compulsory worksharing and it does not safeguard wages. Compulsory action of this kind would not be acceptable and would not be recognized in the iron and steel or any other industry in Great Britain as constituting progress.

They could all agree that hours of work should be reduced, and leisure time increased. The difficulty was to find the means by which these things could be accomplished for those whose conditions were most depressed.

Conditions in the textile industries tended to be depressed because a large proportion of the buyers of textiles were among the poorest people on the globe. The time was overdue for the I.L.O. to direct its attention to that side of the industrial and social problems.

By attempting to isolate the question of hours of work from wages and other vital considerations the Organization could make no real progress in improving world conditions. He hoped the conference would face up to the facts, whether they were welcome or unwelcome.

EMPLOYERS' VIEW
The discussion showed a wide divergence of views between the employers' delegates and the representatives of the workers on the technical possibilities of the proposal.

In the view of the employers, the practical difficulties surrounding an attempt to impose the 40-hour week while maintaining the present rates of pay and standard of living had not been properly thought out.

They considered that a convention such as had been proposed would undermine the principle of collective bargaining, while the question of the standard of living would be interpreted by each Government to suit its own convenience.

They disputed the assumption by the workers' delegates that a reduction of working hours would result in a diminution of unemployment and predicted that it would more likely lead to an intensified search for mechanical appliances to take the place of manual labour.

This view was put forward by Mr. Ashurst technical adviser to the British Empire employers' group, who also advanced the economic argument against the proposal. This was that the adoption of a 40-hour week would involve an increase in the cost of production, which must be added to the selling price, resulting in a decreased demand for textile products.

WORKERS' CASE

The case for the workers' delegations was put by Mr. Arthur Shaw, workers' adviser, British Empire. It was that the textile trade was the most international from its raw materials to its finished products, and if there was a special industry that ought to be dealt with by a convention it was this one. The majority of persons employed in it were women and children, its operations were purely mechanical, and there were no technical obstacles to prevent their interruption at will. It had been impossible to secure any limitation of hours by negotiations with the employers, or by voluntary agreement, hence the appeal to Governments to arrive at some international regulation of hours through a convention.

In the course of a speech towards the close of the meeting M. Jouxhaux (workers' delegate, France) referred to the influence that the 40-hour week might have when France came to revise her commercial policy in respect of tariffs and quotas. He appeared to imply that favourable consideration would be given to those countries which put the 40-hour week into practice.

The small islands of Baker, Jarvis and Howland, which recently figured prominently as outposts of the proposed air-line from Honolulu to New Zealand, have now been officially "colonised" with American citizens.

It is believed this move on the part of the United States is made with the object of forestalling claims by the British Government.

WARSHIP RIGHTS AT STRAITS

Likelihood Of Clash In Viewpoints

SOVIET CLAIMS MAY BE OPPOSED

Ciano To Attend After Lifting Of Sanctions

London, June 25. The Dardanelles conference, which adjourns to-day until after the League Assembly, is not going on so smoothly as anticipated. The discussions so far have revealed the potentialities of discord especially between the British and Soviet viewpoints.

M. Litvinoff in voicing the Soviet claims that the Black Sea remain practically a closed water as far as foreign fleets are concerned equally demands the right for Russia to have free egress for her fleet.

The British delegation on the other hand has not yet officially formulated its viewpoint pending the receipt of instructions from Downing Street which the Cabinet was presumed to have discussed at to-day's meeting, but in general it is reported that Britain is of opinion that the restrictions to warships passing out of the Black Sea should be the same as on vessels entering it.

It is significant that the French press this morning sees danger of "reawakening of the old Anglo-Russian antagonism of 1923."

Observers in Paris point out the importance of the attitude ultimately to be adopted by Italy who is anxious to assert her supremacy in the East Mediterranean and will range herself on the side of Britain.—Reuters.

SURVEY OF ALIGNMENTS

Montreux, June 25. After three days of conference, a survey of alignments of the powers shows the Soviet's claims for free ingress and egress will receive the support of Turkey, Rumania and France.

The only power so far openly opposing is Japan. Bulgaria is expected to also oppose, while Yugoslavia is expected to demand equal rights for all states.

Il Duce's son-in-law, Count Ciano, is expected to represent Italy at the conference after the raising of sanctions and put up strong opposition to M. Litvinoff's claims.—Reuters.

JAPAN'S VIEW

Tokyo, June 25. It is understood a conference of the highest naval officials has decided to support the Turkish demand for revision of the Lausanne Treaty.

Nevertheless, attention is drawn to the too indulgent attitude of the Turkish Government towards the Soviet's request for egress for its warships from the Black Sea.—Reuters.

PASSAGE OF WARSHIPS

Montreux, June 24. Russia, Japan, France and Britain have all put forward suggestions for regulations to govern the passage of armed craft through the Dardanelles, which Turkey desires to re-fortify.

To-day the British delegate to the conference of treaty signatories made reservations with regard to the proposed figure of 14,000 tons of fighting craft which it was proposed to allow through the Straits.

Rusudi Aras, the Turkish representative, said his Government would not insist upon this figure and would consider reasonable modifications.

In response to M. Paul Boncour's suggestion, on behalf of France, M. Maxim Litvinoff, of Russia, agreed to alter his proposed amendment so as to allow belligerent vessels to pass through the Straits when carrying out obligations under the League of Nations Covenant or within the framework of the Covenant.

The Japanese representative said he would accept the restriction upon warships entering the Black Sea provided they were also imposed on warships leaving that sea.—Reuters.

DRAFT DISCUSSED

Montreux, June 24. The second section of the Turkish Draft Agreement was subject to discussions at the Straits Conference on Wednesday, when the clauses concerning the passage of warships were examined. Litvinoff proposed an amendment to the effect that the provisions of Article IV, which permits the passage of warships for the purpose of paying courtesy visits, should apply only to the countries having no coast line of the Black Sea and that the total prohibition of passage for submarines be extended to airplane-carriers.

Lord Stanhope reserved the right to state his attitude to this proposal later, while the Japanese Delegate, Admiral Sato was willing to agree to the restrictions on the entry of warships to the Black Sea, if these restrictions also applied to warships leaving the Black Sea. Paul-Boncour raised some objections regarding the putting of auxiliary vessels on the same footing.

Postponing the consideration of these questions, the Conference then discussed the provisions of the Turkish draft whereby England, Rumania, the Soviet Union and Japan formally give assent in principle to the Turkish motion for a revision of the existing treaty. Then followed a discussion concerning Turkey's neutrality obligations towards non-signatories of the treaty, the Turkish Foreign Minister declaring that if there was a question of Turkey not fulfilling her obligations it was naturally those arising from the League Covenant.—Transocean News Service.

DYNAMITE DEPOT PLOT

TRAGEDY AVERTED IN MANILA

Manila, June 25. A plot to blow up the dynamite depot of the British-owned firm of Smith Bell and Company was foiled by the police who, receiving information at the last moment, raced from the city to the depot and discovered a quantity of petrol-soaked rags with tins of petrol.

The depot contained 10,000 cases of dynamite, sufficient to blow up all the neighbouring villages and cause heavy loss of life.

A similar incident occurred a few days ago when a bomb exploded beside an oil tank owned by the Socony-Vacuum Corporation which, however, suffered no damage. The attempts are believed to be the work of political extremists. Police are investigating, but no arrests have been made so far.—Reuters.

M. Litvinoff, Soviet delegate at the Dardanelles conference is making claims which are likely to be opposed by Italy among others powers.

AUSTRALIA AND JAPAN

Trade Friction In Swing

Canberra, June 25. What he described as a deliberate attempt by Japan to coerce the Commonwealth's trade policy was revealed by the Premier, Mr. J. A. Lyons, in a broadcast following the announcement from Tokyo of Japanese retaliation against the new Australian tariffs.

He said that Japan in recent correspondence declared she will impose harmful trade restrictions if Australia restricted the quantity and increased duty on textile imports.

He added that Japan bluntly demanded the jettisoning of the whole policy of reciprocal Empire trade. The Commonwealth will not depart from the attitude it adopted for protection of Australian industry and the maintenance of the Anglo-Australian trade situation will be considered, but there will be no hasty counter-measures against Japan.—Reuters.

FRANCO-BRITISH POLICIES

Aims Compared By French Journal

(Hong Kong Daily Press Special)

Paris, June 15. Comparing the aims of French and British policy as revealed by recent debates in parliament, "Le Journal" stresses that while Paris and London are in substantial agreement on most points there is nevertheless one fundamental divergence between them resulting from Britain's aversion to co-operate with Soviet Russia.

Premier Blum's policy on the other hand, says the paper, is based on the solidarity of Franco-Russian interests.

The paper believes that this divergence, which is the explanation for Britain's present reserved attitude, is likely to play an important part in the development of political relations between France and Britain during the coming month.—Transocean News Service.

BLUE RIBBAND OF THE ATLANTIC

Normandie To Make Faster Time

(Hong Kong Daily Press Special)

Paris, June 25. The present holder of the blue ribbon, emblematic of the fastest North Atlantic crossing, the great French liner Normandie, has been so greatly speeded up by the recent thorough overhauling of her engines that she will be able to cross the Atlantic in future in 10 hours less than hitherto, according to optimistic forecast by the liner's owners, the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique.

The Company is aware of the fact that the engines of the Normandie's British rival, the Cunard-White Star liner Queen Mary, have not so far been fully developed to the power of which they are capable and point out that in view of the alteration to her engines the Normandie can now exceed the speed of 29 1/2 knots, which she averaged on her record voyage.

The Company consequently expresses confidence that the Normandie will succeed in maintaining her supremacy.—Transocean News Service.

PALESTINE REIGN OF TERROR

ATTACKS ON TRAINS AND CONVOYS

LOW-FLYING AEROPLANE PATROLS

London, June 25. Palestine messages state that potash lorries conveyed by Cameron Highlanders were fired on yesterday on the Jericho road five miles west of a Good Samaritan inn while slowing for a detour round a damaged bridge. Low-flying aeroplanes now patrol the railways and main roads supplementing the convoys. A contingent of troops was sent by train down the Jerusalem-Lydda line and searched the Dier Aban village near the scene of the previous day's attacks on trains. Opposition was encountered and two Arabs were killed and three wounded, but the troops suffered no casualties. Old pistols and ammunition concealed in beds were found in the village.

In Alankim village, the traditional birthplace of John the Baptist, a festival fell due yesterday. A peaceful demonstration of Christian Arabs was held after which a petition was sent to the High Commissioner.

The first case under the new regulations was brought when Arabs in the Jenin neighbourhood were arrested and charged with possession of arms and firing on troops.

Unsuccessful attempts on railways have been made in several places and bombs have exploded in Beersheba, Gaza and Jerusalem suburbs.—British Wireless.

Troops accompanying a convoy encountered Arabs in ambush, inflicting a number of casualties on the raiders before dispersing them.—Reuters Bulletin Service.

CONVOY ATTACKED BY ARABS

Insurgents Repulsed

(Hong Kong Daily Press Special)

Jerusalem, June 24. Twenty-five to 30 Arabs were killed, according to varying accounts, out of the total of 60 armed insurgents encountered by Government troops in the mountains near Tulkarem in Samaria. Official confirmation of this action, has, however, not yet been given.

A lorry convoy, belonging to the Palestine Potash Company was ambushed by Arabs on the road to Jericho, but the attackers were repulsed by the military escort after a fight which lasted 40 minutes. There are now signs that some sections of the Arab population are tiring of the strike and of the material sacrifices which are involved. The majority, however, are still in favour of continuing the revolt. In Nablus the bodies of Arabs killed in action with Government troops have been buried in the cemetery reserved for martyrs.—Transocean News Service.

INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE

Lord Willingdon's Tribute

POSITION IMPROVED RECRUITMENT

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 10.
The Earl of Willingdon, ex-Viceroy of India, last night described the Indian Civil Service as "still the finest and most interesting service in any part of the British Empire," and declared that he could see no justification for fears as to future conditions and security of service.

He was speaking at the Indian Civil Service annual dinner at the Trocadero Restaurant.

Lord Willingdon said that it was a very sad parting when a few weeks ago at Delhi he said goodbye to all those Civil Service officers who had, so effectively and loyally helped him during the past five difficult and trying years.

Speaking of the future of the Indian Civil Service, he said, "It is an enormously important question at the present time; very particularly so, as there seems of recent years to have been some disinclination on the part of young men in this country to take service in India."

"I am glad to learn that more than twice as many British candidates have entered for this year's examination as sat in 1935, and that the entry is greater than that of any since the competitive examination was reopened after the war."

"I am equally glad to think that the Secretary of State has taken special measures, beginning with this year, to try out the method of entry by selection without examination. I hope India will secure in this way some really good men."

"The selection list will not be closed for another week, but I am told that already about 100 applications have been received. Altogether the position as regards recruitment is very much more satisfactory than it has been for a number of years."

"FINEST SERVICE IN THE EMPIRE"

"After 16 years' experience of the country and of the work of your service out there, I believe it would be a disaster if the influence of your service were not to be maintained, for I know that there is as great a necessity for the best of our young men to go out there as ever there was before. We want young men to go out who have enterprise, imagination, a sense of responsibility, and sympathy with the aspirations of the people of the country."

men who—and I speak with some experience—are ready to take their part in what is still the finest and most interesting service that there is in any part of the British Empire.

"It surprises me to learn that there are misgivings in some quarters as to future conditions of security of service, and I would say to young men who are attracted by the prospects of a career so rich in opportunity and to their parents that I can see no justification whatever for such fears."

"I am one of those who believe that if and when the moment comes that His Majesty's Government in the future can say to India, 'We have fulfilled our great trust, we have completed our task, and can with complete confidence hand you over the entire control of your country—which would be the climax to the great service which my countrymen have rendered to India in past years—even then it is my belief that the long partnership between our two races will still remain, for I think Indians and Britons will continue to work and co-operate for the benefit and progress of that wonderful country.'"

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN AND BIRMINGHAM

A City That Was Transformed

DRIVE AND VISION

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 14.
Celebrations of the centenary of the birth of Joseph Chamberlain are being planned for this summer. In this article Joseph Chamberlain, as local government enthusiast, as the creator of a regenerated city, as Mayor of Birmingham, is the subject. His place in high politics may be a theme of controversy, but all parties will acclaim the part he played in local government.

Joseph Chamberlain, Mayor of Birmingham, whose centenary will be celebrated on July 8, was one of the most noteworthy citizens and civic administrators of modern times.

It is a remarkable coincidence that last year should have witnessed the centenary of the passing of the Municipal Corporations Act in 1835 and that 1936 should be the occasion for commemorating the centennial of the birth of the man who created the municipal greatness of a great industrial city within the terms of its provisions.

Chamberlain was a Londoner by birth and a citizen of Birmingham by accident. His work in conjunction with Joseph Nettlefold in devising the modern form of screw made him a man of substantial means by the time he was thirty-eight, and enabled him to retire from business. He became Mayor of Birmingham at the age of thirty-seven, and held office for three years, a majority which is, perhaps, the most notable instance of individual municipal achievement in the history of English local government.

Characteristic of the man that he should adopt a bold line. He started off with the slogan, "In twelve months, by God's help, the town of Birmingham shall not know itself." His Radical opinions in those days earned for him a reputation for Republicanism, and not without some trepidation did the Prince of Wales and the lovely Alexandra of Denmark visit the city in 1874, while Joseph Chamberlain was mayor. The Royal party were received with dignity in a city that had, indeed, been so drastically transformed in its government as hardly to know itself.

ON TWO PRINCIPLES
Birmingham was a vast, badly regulated community, not yet recovered from the turmoil of the Industrial Revolution, when Chamberlain and his party assumed power. The new mayor wanted to spend large sums of money without raising the rates. He proceeded on the two principles that any monopolies which are sustained by the State ought to be controlled by the local authorities; that the power of local authorities ought to be increased until those bodies had the jurisdiction of local parliaments.

His first achievement was in purchasing the holdings of local gas companies at that time. In one transaction he increased the borough debt enormously, but he overcame all opposition by pointing out that in the hands of the corporation the production of gas would soon result in a large measure of relief of existing taxation. He further assumed the chairmanship of the gas committee himself, and in the first half year showed a profit of £25,000. In a few years rates had been twice reduced and the large sum of £285,000 had been partly devoted to the Sinking Fund of the city.

Having tackled the gas problem, he turned to water. In 1874 Birmingham water supply was still a matter of private trading. The pipe service only operated three days a week in a community of more than 300,000 people! Ordinary water came from surface wells, often contaminated by sewage. His first efforts to fight the private enterprises were strenuously opposed, although he had the whole Council behind him to a man. Finally he won by paying out £1,350,000 on the basis of perpetual annuities.

PROGRESS IN HEALTH
Chamberlain's war against the water companies was just part of his campaign against all forms of insanitation. He was a most progressive health administrator: he introduced by-laws to abate nuisances from smoke, embarked on housing plans, extended hospital accommodation, reconstructed sewers and drains.

He turned to the centre of his city and noticed the shambles of houses and dwellings that surrounded the Town Hall. "They are unfit for a dog to die in," he cried. The slums were the foulest in the country and a disgrace that tore the heart of Chamberlain. He was helped by Dr. Bell's Artisans' Dwellings Act, amendments to which he personally suggested to Cross, then Home Secretary. He did not mince words in suggesting a clear sweep of the offensive area when he addressed the Council, "so long as there is this canker at the root morality is an empty name and our civilisation is a thing to scoff at."

He apured the conscience of his fellow citizens, and in the end the space was cleared at a cost of £1,500,000. The work turned out to be an endowment to the city rather than a charge on its resources. Corporation-street came into being and strode over the shambles of unhappy memory. The new properties were speedily taken up on seventy-five-year leases; in twenty years these leases will fall in, and Birmingham will automatically become one of the richest municipalities in the world.

ALIEN OFFICERS IN BRITISH SHIPS
JAPANESE UNDER THE RED ENSIGN
(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 14.
Several large ships of British registry now engaged in the Pacific trade are officered and manned almost entirely by Japanese nationals.

This was disclosed when a vessel of 6,000 tons gross recently arrived at Hong Kong from Australian ports, with only three British subjects on board—the master, chief engineer and wireless operator. The first and second mates, the second and third engineers, and all the deckhands were Japanese. Yet the ship is registered at London and flies the Red Ensign.

A second vessel of the same line is manned on the same system, and it is understood that these are by no means isolated cases.

Although these vessels are probably listed by the British authorities as available for transport or other national service in an emergency, the fact that they are almost entirely under alien control renders it very doubtful whether they would be so available.

The ships are understood to be Japanese-owned, and British registry has apparently been resorted to as a means of evading a new Japanese law relating to subsidies.

Mr. Theodore Goddard, honorary solicitor to the Newspaper Society, said there was no copyright in news as such, but only in the "literary form given to it."

"The newspaper of to-day," he added, "is definitely a literary work, and I think it is fair to say that in the Empire it is a better literary work, better produced and better printed, and, in particular, has better taste than anywhere else in the world."

Sir William Jarratt, secretary of the Trade Marks, Patents and Designs Federation, said the advent of broadcasting had completely changed the situation regarding the disclosure of news, and television, when it reached its full stature, would effect a further revolution.

Sir Thomas McAra, secretary of the Newspaper Proprietors' Association, said that the Press of this country was opposed, altogether to the recognition of property value in news.

NEWS CLAIMED AS PROPERTY

Lives Risked To Obtain It

TELEVISION AS A RIVAL

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 11.
The right of property in news was discussed at the conference of the Empire Press Union in London yesterday. Major J. J. Astor, M.P., presided.

Sir Roderick Jones, chairman of Reuters, said that the newspaper or news agency which by its foresight, expenditure of brain, money, and physical force, produced a service of news, was entitled to the fruits of its enterprise.

Full enjoyment of those fruits could be assured only if the newspaper and news agency were protected against the person who expended neither endeavour nor money in assembling the news at its source and in transmitting it to its destination, but "lifted" it on the way or elsewhere and turned it to his own account.

Put at its highest, that man was reaping where he had not sown, but at its lowest he was a common thief.

Sir Roderick described the risks and dangers faced by newspaper correspondents in Abyssinia.

"During the bombing of Quorum," he said, "Reuters' correspondent escaped death only by a miracle. His motor lorry and all his belongings were destroyed."

"In the debacle just before the Italians entered Addis Ababa, Reuters' quarters were looted by the mob and the correspondent there was in grave peril. Throughout the campaign other correspondents were exposed to similar hazards."

RADIO RIVALRY
"Wireless broadcasting," he continued, "is advancing everywhere. It is a rival which the newspaper cannot, and do not, disregard, and it behoves them and the news agencies, the two allies, who, between them, for all practical purposes control the news fields of the earth, to take measures while there is yet time, to establish everywhere, as in the United States, the doctrine that new is property, which to-day is recognised in the United States by all responsible wireless broadcasters no less than by the Press themselves."

The world was being flooded with officially-inspired matter in many tongues. Count Ciano, the Italian Minister for Propaganda, had boasted that the Italian Government station was broadcasting in 18 different languages. One effect of these and other broadcasts was to cheapen news and debas its quality.

Mr. Theodore Goddard, honorary solicitor to the Newspaper Society, said there was no copyright in news as such, but only in the "literary form given to it."

"The newspaper of to-day," he added, "is definitely a literary work, and I think it is fair to say that in the Empire it is a better literary work, better produced and better printed, and, in particular, has better taste than anywhere else in the world."

Sir William Jarratt, secretary of the Trade Marks, Patents and Designs Federation, said the advent of broadcasting had completely changed the situation regarding the disclosure of news, and television, when it reached its full stature, would effect a further revolution.

BEACH REFUSE COMES FROM JUNKS

Urban Council Chairman Answers Questions NO GARBAGE DUMPED

The origin of the refuse on Hong Kong's bathing beaches was the dumping of rubbish by junks and steamers, declared the Chairman of the Urban Council (Mr. R. R. Todd) yesterday.

Replying to questions by Dr. R. A. de Castro Basto and Dr. Li Shu-fan, Mr. Todd said that dumping offences were difficult to detect because they generally took place at night. He declared that none of the Colony's garbage was dumped at sea but was used at the Kowloon reclamation and did not reach the sea.

BEACHES KEPT CLEAN

Dr. de Castro Basto's questions, and Mr. Todd's replies were:—

Question: What is the probable origin of the refuse that is found in the bathing beaches in Hong Kong and Kowloon?

Answer: The refuse which is washed up on the bathing beaches in Hong Kong and Kowloon probably comes from junks and other small craft and from steamers entering or leaving the Harbour.

All refuse collected by the Sanitary Department is conveyed in lighters to the site of the reclamation at Kowloon and dumped there as filling material.

Very little, if any, of this refuse finds its way into the sea. It is also probable that the water flowing into the harbour from streams, drains and sewers carries with it a certain amount of refuse.

NIGHT DUMPING

Question: Is it possible to end this nuisance by preventing the dumping of rubbish in the harbour and in proximity to bathing resorts?

Answer: The dumping of refuse into streams, drains and sewers and into public places from which it is washed by rain into streams, drains and sewers is an offence under Section 3 (1) of Ordinance No. 40 of 1932 which calls for unceasing vigilance on the part of the police and officials of the Sanitary Department.

As most of the dumping undoubtedly occurs at night it is difficult to prevent it entirely.

The casting of rubbish from ships into the waters of the Colony, an offence under Section 25 (c) of the Merchant Shipping Ordinance, 1899, is equally difficult to prevent.

SCAVENGING COOLIES

Question: Can the nuisance not be abated by employing coolies to keep the popular bathing beaches clean?

Answer: All beaches in Hong Kong and Kowloon are scavenged daily either by the scavenging staff of the Health District concerned or in the case of certain beaches by coolies employed solely for that purpose. The beaches at which special coolies are employed are as follows:—

Repulse Bay Beach, three coolies; Middle Bay Beach and South Bay Beach, one coolie for the two beaches; Shek O and Big Wave Bay Beach, one coolie.

In addition there is a boatman at each of the following beaches: Repulse Bay, Middle Bay, South Bay, and Stanley, who assists in the scavenging when not otherwise employed.

Question: Could floating garbage be collected in nets?

Answer: The collection of floating garbage in nets is regarded as impracticable.

gangsters were taken by surprise and no resistance was offered.

The five-year old boy was abducted from his Chapel home, 20 Hui Yuan Lee, Chang An Road, on May 27. The gang shot dead an accountant who had raised an alarm, and as they fled from the scene, two pullers and a pedestrian were injured by the speeding car. No less than 20 suspects were detained by the Chinese Police since the abduction, and some of them were said to have been identified as having taken part in the crime. (N.C.D.N.)

KUN TONG DUMP

Dr. Li Shu-fan's questions and Mr. Todd's answers were:—

With a view to minimizing the pollution of the harbour sea water and to safeguarding the health of those who bathe in the water within and adjoining the harbour, will the Chairman kindly furnish answers to the following questions?

Is it a fact that during the preceding 12 months the Kun Tong Reclamation was made the exclusive refuse-dump for refuse collected from the cities of Victoria and Kowloon?

Answer: Yes.

Question: During this period, has there been any refuse-disposal made at sea by means of barges?

Answer: No.

MANY SUMMONSES

Question: During this period, how many summonses and convictions if any, against steamers and other watercrafts for having committed nuisances in respect of the dumping overboard of refuse within harbour limits?

Answer: The Harbour Master informs me that during the last 12 months 21 persons were arrested for dumping rubbish into the harbour, and were brought before the Marine Magistrate. All except one were convicted.

Only four of these convictions were in respect of the dumping of rubbish overboard from junks and sampans; the remainder were in respect of the throwing of refuse into the Harbour from the Praya. There were no summonses against steamers for dumping refuse within the Harbour limits.

APPLICATIONS

An application for a restaurant licence at No. 142, Johnson Road, on the ground and first floors was discussed. The select committee had refused this on the adverse reports of the District and Senior Inspectors. The main objection was the inadequate proportions of the kitchen. An inspection of the premises was fixed for July 3.

Thirteen other applications for food shop licences were refused by the Council en bloc, the Select Committee having previously refused them.

An application for a goat licence at the Amoy Canning Corporation, Ngau Tau Kok, was presented to the Council. The Select Committee had refused the application unanimously but there were one or two members of the Council who thought that the application could be granted.

The Hon. Mr. T. H. King, I.G.P., had submitted three grounds for the granting of the application and they were that the applicant had previous permission up to the present, that there were only three goats and that the compound was large enough. When the application was put to the vote it was refused.

THOSE PRESENT

Present at the meeting were:—Mr. R. R. Todd (Chairman), Dr. A. R. Wellington (Vice-Chairman), Mr. A. G. W. Tickle (D.P.W.), Mr. W. J. Carrie (S.C.A.), Mr. F. C. Hall, Dr. R. A. de Castro Basto, Dr. Li Shu-fan, Mr. A. el Arculli, Dr. S. N. Chau, Mr. W. N. T. Tam, Mr. B. Wong Tape, Mr. C. Champkin, Mr. C. J. Roe (Secretary) and Mr. Im Ping-ming (Asst. Secretary).

SENSE AND NONSENSE

AT THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION

So we are not to have the inestimable pleasure of swilling cold draughts of beer on sultry July and August evenings at the "Coney Island" which was to be down Yangtze-poo way. The great International Exhibition and Fair, which it was confidently expected by some people—though not by us—would attract exhibits and buyers to Shanghai from all parts of the world, is "off." Gone are all the glamorous schemes for "pageants, parades, historical cavalcades, competitions, and concerts." No thrills will be had on the scenic railway; no lovely ladies will adorn the ballroom; no ice will tinkle in the brimming glasses in the beer-hall. One of the two promoters of the scheme has explained to the local Press how this deplorable state of affairs has come about.

Says Mr. A. Drouth:—

"The International Exhibition and Fair was organized by myself and Mr. Z. P. Tang, with a view to assisting International trade in Shanghai during a period of depression. Considerable initial support was received from a number of leading business concerns and the prospects were that it would prove a success. Owing however to a complete breakdown in health, necessitating an absence from the office over a protracted period, difficulties arose and the necessary financial backing was withdrawn. It became therefore necessary to abandon the project."

SCHEME ABANDONED

We are very sorry to learn of Mr. Drouth's serious illness, and it is unfortunate that his long absence from office should have led first to difficulties and then to financial backing being withdrawn thus making it necessary to abandon the scheme. You can't do much without money in these days of frozen credit. But up to a few days before this explanation was given out, large advertisements were appearing in the Shanghai papers, announcing that all the big sites had been taken up, though smaller spaces were still available. We do not know to what extent Mr. Drouth's illness is responsible for the collapse of this scheme. But we do know that as far back as April 1 there was trouble brewing, as evidenced by the action of the China Manufacturers' and Merchants' Association in advising its 120 members not to make any plans to take part in the exhibition, pending further investigation of the project. The announcement that Mr. K. P. Chen, President of the Chinese Bankers' Association, had requested that his name be withdrawn from the published list of "sponsors" was another indication that things were not going too well. Readers of The People's Tribune will remember an editorial article published a couple of months ago in which doubt was plainly expressed as to the value of the scheme to business-men, and subsequent events have shown that the views then expressed were pretty near the mark. Those of our readers who were looking forward to spending pleasant summer evenings at the Exhibition—"the location on the river-bank will ensure cooling breezes," said one enthusiastic write-up—will be bitterly disappointed, but we doubt whether local manufacturers, exporters, and importers will be still further depressed in this period of general depression by the abandonment of the Yangtze-poo scheme. Not having built any hopes, they will have none to lose, but the taxi-dancers who were hoping to find generous patrons among the buyers who were supposed to be rushing Shanghaiward from all parts of the world, the "hot-dog" merchants who were hoping for big business, ice-cream and beer vendors, scenic railway-men, and others (including, perhaps, a few advertising managers) will no doubt feel very sore to think that this great plan to assist international trade in the East has "gone west!"

Council for a further term of three years and a letter from Government signifying the approval of the Legislative Council to the amendment of the by-laws under the heading, "Slaughter-houses," and sub-heading "Slaughter of animals," set forth in the schedule to the Public Health (Food) Ordinance, 1935 were laid on the table.

TELEPHONES BEING INSTALLED

LOWER COST FOR CALLS

Shanghai, June 26.

At the end of February this year, there were 31 public telephone pay-stations in service in Shanghai. To-day the number of stations is just over 200.

The difficulties which in the past have stood in the way of the development of this type of telephone service were cleared when the new message rate tariffs were introduced early this year. As a result, according to an announcement from the Shanghai Telephone Company, the company is at present engaged on an expansion programme which in the past three months has already greatly increased the number of public telephones.

It is expected that in the future Shanghai will be as well served by public telephones as are the world's principal cities.

The locations selected for these pay-stations are public buildings, banks, department stores, restaurants, markets, parks, public jetties and stores on busy streets and important intersections—in fact wherever the public may best be served.

LOWER COST OF CALLS

Another advantage brought about by the new tariff, is the lower cost per telephone call. Before message rates, the charge per local call was 10 cents small money (roughly seven cents big money). To-day it costs only five cents, or one nickel coin. It is also possible to make inter-communication calls (i.e., calls to Chapel, Nantao, Civic Centre, etc.) from public stations, the charge being 10 cents or two nickel coins.

Increased usage of the public telephones is indicative of the public's growing appreciation of the service. (N.C.D.N.)

BOY VICTIM FOUND SAFE AND SOUND

Chapel Kidnappers Rounded Up In Changchow

FIVE OTHER BOYS FREED FROM GANG

Shanghai, June 26.

Held for ransom by kidnappers for more than three weeks, the five-year old grandson of a wealthy stone merchant residing in Chapel was brought here safe and sound by the Chinese police yesterday. Five other boys found in the same fair were to be restored to their respective homes.

Although the motor car in which the gang escaped with the boy victim from Chapel was found on the Shanghai-Wush highway, no valuable clue was obtained until recently, when several suspects were arrested. Several trips were made to Wush by detectives handling the case, but each proved to be fruitless, so constantly had the gang moved their hiding place.

Meanwhile additional arrests were made in Shanghai. Led by a new suspect, the detectives of the Bureau of Public Safety left for Wush again on Wednesday. With the assistance of the Wush Police, the police party raided a small boat outside the West Gate in Wush, in which two additional suspects were arrested. ## NORMANDIE TO SPEED UP

Paris, June 24.

The Compagnie Generale Transatlantique announces a considerable increase in the speed of the Normandie, holder of the Atlantic Blue Riband, but now challenged by the British giant, Queen Mary.

The Normandie will henceforth accomplish the voyage from France to America in ten hours less time than she requires at present.

The speed of her crossing will require an average pace of almost 29.5 knots per hour, by which she established a record on her maiden voyage.
